ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON THE CJA VOUCHER PROCESS

Under the Criminal Justice Act (CJA), the Court of Appeals appoints private attorneys to represent indigent criminal defendants. The person in the posted position will be responsible for issuing and processing the vouchers through which these attorneys are paid. As an initial step, a voucher is issued to the appointed attorney at the beginning of the appeal. This and every subsequent step requires reference to three separate on-line database systems, and entry of data into those systems.

After the appeal is decided, the attorney submits the voucher, setting out the hours worked and expenses incurred in the representation, and attaching detailed time sheets and documentation of expenses as required. This voucher packet must be carefully examined for compliance with the applicable regulations and policies, and appropriate adjustments made. All mathematical calculations must be verified, and additional relevant materials must be attached to prepare the packet for substantive review by one of the attorneys employed by this office.

Regular communication with CJA-appointed attorneys is required – to answer general questions, to respond to inquiries about voucher status, and to allow attorneys to provide further information when questions are raised about the amounts requested.

Finally, the voucher must be prepared for transfer to another employee who is responsible for authorizing payment in the approved amount. Regular reports must be prepared outlining the operations of the office for the court, and there are sometimes requests for more detailed statistical analyses of particular aspects of the appointment and payment process.

The volume of submissions is high, and the workload is heavy. In the last calendar year 660 vouchers were submitted. While computer databases are involved, the process itself is not automated. Although the supervising attorney and the reviewing attorneys are always available for consultation, the position requires assuming responsibility for maintaining the workflow of the office without over-the-shoulder supervision. Backlogs cannot be tolerated.

The applicant should provide evidence of education or experience that demonstrates a high level of comfort in working with figures both manually and using software, with applying rules accurately and precisely, and with accepting the substantial responsibilities of the position. There is an important public relations aspect of communications with appointed attorneys, and skills in this area are required. Familiarity with litigation or with court operations would be helpful but is not a prerequisite.
